New at HWR Berlin? Welcome!
At the academic library at HWR Berlin we want to give you the best support possible. To do so, we offer a variety of services – both on site and online.

With the beginning of the new term, the library offers an introduction to its services in English. We invite you to join us via Big Blue Button for an introductory lecture to learn about the services and materials provided by the library at HWR Berlin. The lecture will take place at different times, so please see the chart provided above to see the dates for the introduction in English.

Each unit will last approximately 45-60 minutes. You don’t have to reserve a spot in advance. Just log in and join us.

During the lecture we will give you information on the following topics:

- Where to find the library on site and what to consider when using it
- How to search our collections using our research portal HoWeR
- How to check out materials on site and how to use electronic resources
- How to use your library account
