Degree programme

Do you have a great idea with potential which you want to realize? You would also like to manage one of the over 100 000 companies in Germany which are looking for qualified successors? Are you already in employment and think that the role of an Entrepreneur is for you? Then the HWR Berlin is the right place to prepare yourself for this future.

The practical training of the Bachelor's degree programme Entrepreneurship and Corporate Succession has been tailored to preparing its students for an independent business role. Providing a thorough grounding in Business Administration and Economics, the Social Sciences, Law, Statistics, Mathematics and Data Processing, students learn to evaluate and consider the risks and chances involved in business activities. Courses in Strategic Management, Negotiation, Communication and Presentation Techniques help to create the managers of the future.

The degree programme provides future entrepreneurs with the opportunity to combine a high-quality academic education with practice-based learning.

Professional field

The focus on self-organization and process-oriented working together with a range of specializations which the degree programme provides trains its students for a later management role, whether in their own company or an existing SME. Tailored to the requirements of SMEs, the syllabus prepares graduates of the programme for management tasks in all branches of Business Administration in over three million SMEs in Germany; it also equips them to lead their own start-up. Should students not experience immediate success as entrepreneurs or corporate succession, they are also well-qualified for a career in an independent company. The Bachelor's degree also qualifies graduates for subsequent study on a later Master's degree programme.

Degree structure

The degree programme Entrepreneurship and Corporate Succession has a standard period of study of six or eight semesters; students can take classes in the day time, evening or study in a Blended Learning experience. The close collaboration with the HWR Business Incubation Center and the Berlin start-up scene is a central part of the degree programme.
